A THEF CHEATED.—The story of whittling out shoe-pegs and selling them for oats, reminds me of a Yankee peddler down east, not long since, who stopped for the night at a public house, and like all other humane travelers, went to the stable before retiring for the night, to see how Dobbin fared. On his way to the stall he came in contact with a country wagon loaded, as he supposed with oats. Now, a yankee peddler is the last man on earth to let his nag go hungry when there is plenty of provender within reach. Quick raised wages to such an exorbitant price that the as thought his plan was laid, and quicker still it very liberally supplied with its contents. The next strike caused an idle day, and a day of idleness The Clay Club meets to-night.
